

Over the last decade science and technology has advanced our lives significantly. But the accelerated growth in technology and industrialization revolution has resulted in ecological degradation.